

Through Zion's Window

APRIL 2021

Dear friends in Christ,

It's almost Easter! Yeah – now go hunt for hidden, colorful eggs and a basket of chocolate!

The secular and the religious imagery don't play well together for this Holy Day (holiday). Instead of focusing on grace and forgiveness and sacrifice the secular holiday focuses on rabbits and candy.

And that thought leads me to wonder about how folks understand the meaning of Easter. For some, it means new clothes and a chance to show them off. Others focus on the eggs, candy, and special meals. March Madness draws us to the television and Spring Break is a highlight of the season for many as the current chaos in Miami Beach makes all too clear.

Yet, for both the religious and the secular celebrants, Easter is also billed as a time of resurrection and renewal. It may be relatively easy to renew things outwardly — new clothes, a hairstyle, a fancy party. Renewal on the inside can be more difficult. Problems from the past can torment us for a long, long time. Broken relationships undermine self-confidence. Guilt over missed opportunities, pain from rejection, loneliness and anger from past hurts can sometimes create downward spiral in our lives; a psychological black hole from which escape is difficult.

Where does one find inner renewal? Some look to friends or family. Counselors and self-help books provide coping skills. But maybe a look at the first Easter could also offer some clues.

Nearly two thousand years ago, a revolutionary Jewish leader upset the established authorities. He was executed, declared dead, wrapped up in grave clothes and placed in a tomb. A large stone was rolled against the tomb's entrance and guards were put in place to protect the tomb from grave robbers.

Two days later, the stone was rolled away and the tomb was empty, but the grave clothes were still in place. The man's closest followers, most of whom had abandoned him during his trials, reported seeing him alive again. Despite threats from those very same authorities these followers persisted in sharing the story of Jesus. Even as many of them were killed for doing so they refused to back down. These men and women, who lacked the courage to stand by Jesus on Good Friday and who huddled in fear on that day of resurrection were able to move past their failure, their guilt and pain, and their fear.

They had been transformed from the inside and it affected every part of their lives, giving them strength, freedom from guilt, love for their enemies, and boldness to stand for what they believed was right. "If anyone is in Christ," wrote one early believer, "he is a new creation; the old has gone, the new has come!"

Sometimes life's challenges can drive us to seek distraction. To avoid examining ourselves closely lest we find ourselves lacking. Yet that first Easter still offers hope. If God loved us enough to die for us, to give us new life and forgiveness, then people today can be set free from the torments of their past and find a new hope for the future.
